Suit Challenges Multipliers of Revenue Dept.

Rock Island County Files; Believed Test Case for All Counties

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP) — Rock Island County and its clerk has filed a suit — expected to become a test case for all counties in Illinois — challenging the legality of the tax multipliers set up by the state Department of Revenue.

The suit was filed in Rock Island County Court. It claimed that under the statutes the action of the Department of Revenue in setting up tax multipliers — used to establish increased valuation on present assessed value of property for tax purposes — is illegal because it is a legislative action and not executive and administrative.

Million Dollar Tax Increase

The Department of Revenue this year hiked the tax multiplier in Rock Island County from 1.0309 to 1.1364. County officials estimated it lifted the property valuation by $50,000,000, and would increase taxes by about $1,000,000.

Rock Island County and Harold Johnson, county clerk, were listed as separate plaintiffs in the suit, filed by Charles T. Miller, assistant state's attorney. Named as defendants were the Revenue Department and its chief, Richard J. Lyons.

Four Requests

The 32-page brief made four separate requests of the court.

One asked an order directing Johnson to assess taxes in 1958 at the assessed valuation set up by the county board of review. The second sought an order directing defendants to comply with the legislative intent of the revenue act. The third asked the defendants be restrained from interfering with actions extending Rock Island County taxes on the valuations certified by the board of review; and the fourth asked whatever other orders might be warranted to carry out the intent of the suit.

It was the first suit of its kind in the state, county authorities believed. Copies will be sent to officials in the other 101 Illinois counties and most will be invited to join if they so desire. About 80 per cent of the counties got increased tax multipliers this year.

Livestock Producers

To Hear Experts

Livestock producers of Saline county are invited to a morning meeting starting at 9:30 Thursday, Jan. 23, at the Harrisburg city hall where Bob Webb, director of Dixon Springs experiment station, and Dr. M. E. Mansfield, university research veterinarian, will speak.

Gray Reveals Two Million Contract for Devils Kitchen Road

WASHINGTON (AP) — A West Frankfort congressman said Saturday a Springfield, Ill., firm has been awarded a $1,912,000 contract to build roads and recreational facilities around a southern Illinois dam now under construction.

Kenneth Gray, a Democrat, said M. C. McCann and Company was awarded the contract by the St. Louis District Office of the Army Engineers. The work will be around Devils Kitchen Dam in the Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge area near Marion.

Twenty four miles of access roads, parking and trailer lots, bathhouses and docks, picnic shelters, a sewage disposal system, water supply system and bridges will be built.

Gray said work should start within 60 days.

Gray said the access roads to Devils Kitchen Dam will connect with a new federal expressway planned through southern Illinois.

Farm Social Security Reports Due This Month

Farmers who employed hired help on their farm in 1957 have reached the time for reporting the agricultural wages paid in 1957. The law in regard to farm employment was changed beginning with 1957 and the conditions under which farm wages are now covered are different, according to E. Bishop Hill, manager of the Harrisburg Social Security Administration district office.

In 1957 a farmer who paid cash wages of $150 or more during the year to a hired hand must report the wages to the Director of Internal Revenue at Springfield for social security purposes. It is immaterial whether the cash wages were paid on a piece-rate or time-rate basis. The number of days worked does not matter as long as the total cash wages paid are $150 or more.

Also, if the farmer hired a wage earner who worked for him on 20 or more days during the year for cash wages figured on a time basis (such as an hourly, daily, or weekly rate) must also be reported regardless of the amount of the cash wages paid.

In determining the amount of agricultural wages only cash wages are considered since wages in kind are excluded.

Agricultural wages are reported annually to the Director of Internal Revenue. This report must be filed during January and not later than January 31, 1958. A farm employer must have an employer's identification number to report wages paid to his employees. For information as to the securing of an employer's identification number or additional information about agricultural workers, contact the social security district office at Harrisburg or the Internal Revenue Service at Springfield.

Against Early East-West Summit Meet

Eisenhower Sends Brief Letter to Premier Bulganin

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower in a brief letter to Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin today made clear that he still opposes an early East-West summit meeting.

The President's three-sentence note was in reply to Bulganin's Jan. 8 letter calling for a head-of-government conference within the next two or three months.

Eisenhower acknowledged receipt of Bulganin's letter, but said no further answer was necessary because he had "dealt with the substantive matters which it contains" in replying on Jan. 12 to Bulganin's December letter.

The earlier letter from the Kremlin, delivered just prior to the Western Allies' summit conference in Paris, called for East-West talks on banning nuclear weapons and nuclear tests, the creation of a nuclear and missile-free belt across central Europe and an East-West non-aggression pact.

Nab Gunmen In Danville Store Holdup

DANVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Authorities today held two gunmen who robbed a supermarket of more than $3,000, used four hostages to escape and were captured in separate gun battles.

One of the men, identified as Walter Gump, 36, allegedly forced three of the hostages to accompany him across the state line into Indiana where he was captured by police.

The other man, identified as John Definbaugh, 47, escaped from the Danville grocery store Saturday night by using one of the hostages as a shield.

Definbaugh was captured near Danville after he had been wounded in the shoulder by police as he fled on foot.

Police said Gump was held in jail and Definbaugh was under guard in a hospital. Both are from Muncie, Ind.

South Pole Party Arrives at Spot, To Continue Frozen Overland Trip

SOUTH POLE (AP) — Dr. Vivian Fuchs and 11 companions arrived today at the South Pole, the halfway mark on their historic overland journey across the frozen Antarctic continent.

The leader of the British Antarctic expedition was met by Sir Edmund Hillary, conqueror of Mount Everest, who had led an expedition across the icy wastes from Scott Base on the opposite side of the continent.

There was no indication of any coolness between the two men when they shook hands a mile from the pole.

"Hello, Bunny," said Hillary.

Fires Kill at Least 29 Over United States

Six Die in Florida Tragedy, Four in Chicago Blaze

By United Press

A rash of week-end fires claimed a heavy toll of lives and property. Fires snuffed out the lives of six persons in a wooden frame home at Hastings, Fla.; swept crowded apartment buildings in Chicago and in Boston; and trapped victims in private homes across the nation.

A United Press count showed at least 29 persons perished in the fires Sunday and early today. One was missing and feared dead.

Flames erupted in explosive fury at a Texas chemical plant and caused more than one million dollars' damage at an Indiana parochial school.

The greatest loss of life was in the Florida fire. Three farm laborers and three children died in an explosion and fire that occurred Sunday night when one of the group poured kerosene on a hot stove.

A fourth child was burned critically and two other adults suffered slight burns.

Four persons, including a 21-month-old baby, died in flames that swept a three-story apartment building in Chicago early today. Firemen said the victims apparently were trapped on the top floor when flames and smoke blocked a central stairway, the only means of escape.

A woman, 52, died of smoke inhalation in another Chicago apartment blaze early today. More than 70 persons, including a 104-year-old woman, were evacuated from the two burning buildings.

Two sisters, 78 and 80 years old, died when a fire blazed on an overheated kerosene stove destroyed their home near Bucyrus, Ohio, Sunday, and a 40-year-old mother of four burned to death when flames swept her home at Shady-side, Ohio. Two teenage babysitters rescued the children but did not know the mother had returned home and gone to bed without awakening them.

Two men died when fire destroyed a two-room home at Belcourt, N. D., Sunday and two children died when flames trapped them in an upstairs bedroom of their home at Warrenton, N. C.

A flash fire killed a 35-year-old father Sunday at Petersburg, Mich. His wife and two of their three children were hospitalized with burns.

An elderly woman was missing and believed dead in a fire at Delmar, on the Maryland-Delaware border.

Three men were killed and a fourth burned critically when a

Seek Damages as Result of Crash

Richard R. French and G. W. Siler are named defendants in a damage suit filed in Saline County Circuit Court for Earl Lane and Dorothy Lane by their attorneys, Robert V. Wilson and Harry J. Flanders.

The suit is the result of a collision Jan. 2, 1956, on Route 45 two miles north of Eldorado.

It says the Lanes suffered injuries as the result of the collision. The suit states the Lanes were riding in a pickup truck and had stopped on the highway while children were being discharged from a school bus. While stopped, it charges, a trailer tractor unit driven by French hit the rear of the Lane truck. French was acting as agent for Siler at the time of the accident, it is stated, in the damage suit, which asks for $20,000 damages on each of four counts.

Asks Business, Labor Go Slow On Increases

Says Stable Prices Essential in Annual Report to Nation

By DAYTON MOORE

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower coupled a generally optimistic report on the nation's economy today with a new warning to business and labor leaders to go slow on price and wage increases.

"As we look ahead in 1958," he said, "there are grounds for expecting that the decline in business activity need not be prolonged and that economic growth can be resumed without extended interruption."

The President, in his annual economic report, said that stable prices are essential to a sound, prosperous economy.

Business leaders must hold price increases to amounts warranted by increased production costs, the President said. And labor must limit its demands for higher wages to gains in productivity per man-hour, he said.

Otherwise, he said, recovery from the present business slump could be slowed down.

Asks Wage-Price Restraint

The new call for self-restraint on prices and wages highlighted the annual economic report to Congress. He had sounded such warnings previously when administration economic policies were directed to combating inflationary pressures. This was the first time he had spoken out along this line since inflationary pressures lessened with the decline in business activity.

It came only a few weeks before start of negotiations on some major new wage contracts, including those for the aircraft and auto industries.

The overall tone of the President's report was optimistic about the economic outlook, both for the near future and the long run.

He reported record overall prosperity for 1957 despite the economic decline in the latter part of the year. But he said about four-fifths of the year's business gains in dollars was eaten up by inflationary price rises. And some segments of the national economy did not do quite as well as in 1956.

Looking to the future, the President stressed the importance of an expected business pickup being based on a sound dollar and reasonably stable prices.

Sees Business Pickup

The President noted several factors favorable for a business pickup later this year. They included high personal income and consumer spending, low inventories, increased defense spending, easier credit with lower interest rates, higher expenditures for research and development. He also cited the outlook for increased home building and larger expenditures by state and local governments for public services, such as highway construction.

Increased defense spending to meet Russia's space challenge was a large factor in the President's confidence in an economic upswing this year.

How Teens Look Called Crime Curb

CHICAGO — — High school principals say teaching youngsters good grooming and good conduct can help cut delinquency.

The principals of 38 schools called for a specific program to correlate grooming, grades and conduct in a survey sponsored by a hair products firm (Helene Curtis).

"The famous educator, John
Dewey, said we should educate
We present total picture to the world. It's hard to think of good citizenship and then dress and act like an anarchist," said the principal of Mt. Lebanon High School, Pittsburgh.

All schools questioned offer special classes to improve looks and posture. Classes are compulsory and range from homemaking for girls to ROTC for boys.

Southwest High School in Kansas City, Mo., offer six courses in general appearance, which include health habits, hair care, and eating habits.

"We do not let our students wear unusual garb. Our leaders are conservative. Our physical education and home economics courses stress good grooming," reported the Topeka High School principal, Topeka, Kan.

Courage to meet the blow,
But what it meant to lose you,
The World will never know.

Hopes Are '59 Budget Will Spur Economy, End in Black

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA) — The new 73.9 billion-dollar budget which President Eisenhower has just sent to Congress for fiscal 1959 illustrates how much the mood of the country has changed in the last year.

In January, 1957, former Secretary of Treasury George M. Humphrey warned that if the upward trend of government expenses were not promptly stopped, there would be inflation and a depression "that would curl your hair."

This stirred up one of the biggest economy drives in the history of the country. Congress lopped from four to six billion dollars off government appropriations.

In spite of this, supplemental appropriations for new missile and defense programs now make it appear that government expenditures will be 72.8 billion dollars for the year ending this June 30. This will be just a billion dollars more than the budget which went to Congress a year ago, and which everyone thought was five billion dollars too high.

BUT NOW COMES THE administration with its proposal for a 73.9 billion-dollar budget for the year beginning next July 1 and ending June 30, 1959. It's the biggest peacetime budget.

It is two billion dollars more than the budget prepared a year ago and a billion dollars more than expenditures anticipated for the current fiscal year.

Actually, a four-billion dollar increase in defense expenditures is cut down two billion dollars by economies to be effected in other departments of government.

How much further will Congress be able and willing to economize on this budget?

And if Congress not only refuses to cut this budget but also increases defense appropriations for still more missiles, will this signal the start of the inflation and depression that Mr. Humphrey tried to warn about a year ago?

The country is already admittedly in a period of readjustment or recession or whatever you want to call it. But this is not now attributed to inflated government expenditures. It is more of a recession or deflation, which was not anticipated.

NOBODY COULD BE ANY easier than the new Secretary of Treasury Robert B. Anderson in discussing the new budget.

He will give no precise predictions on whether taxes and the national debt ceiling will have to be raised to meet the new increased costs of national defense.

He will not even make an estimate on what the national income and gross national product will be next year to raise the 74.4 billion dollars in taxes which the government hopes to collect to cover expenses of the 73.9 billion-dollar budget.

All Secretary Anderson will say is that this country has the ability to provide whatever we need in the way of national security, and that this can be done on a pay-as-we-go basis.

Secretary Anderson won't even say whether present taxes are too high or not. All he will admit is that "they're high."

In the absence of enlightenment in such totally inadequate analyses as these, the administration's budget philosophy and fiscal policy have to be subjected to a certain amount of speculation.

IT WOULD APPEAR THAT the administration anticipates the two to four billion dollars' worth of new defense spending will reverse the recession somewhat. It will create jobs.

This will help increase national income and gross national product. Normal population growth and the constantly expanding American economy which everyone counts on will also contribute to this development.

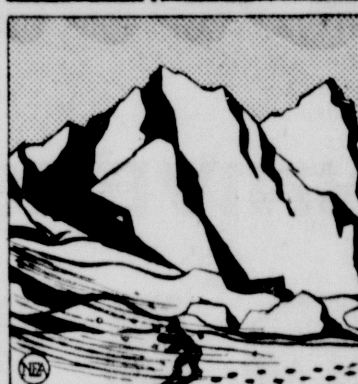

The hoped-for result is that national income will continue to rise and rise fast enough to provide tax revenues which will meet the constantly increasing costs of national defense.

To a degree, this is seen as an effort to spend the country back to prosperity. This is a charge which the Republicans used to make against Democratic administration.

But the Eisenhower administration is not relying on deficit financing to achieve this result. It still hopes to obtain a balanced budget in 1959, though only by the slim margin of half a billion dollars.

As long as there is any surplus at all, however, the budget is not inflationary. In this respect it is considered sound.

Matter of FACT

The first known arctic explorer was Pytheas, a Greek. In about 325 B.C., he seems to have traveled as far north as the Arctic Circle on the coast of Norway. This was about the same time as Alexander the Great was forcing a way into India. Pytheas took back many true stories which few people believed because they did not agree with Greek ideas about what the world must be like.

MAXTON, N. C. (U.P.)—Authorities planned legal action today against leaders of a Ku Klux Klan group whose rally set a band of North Carolina Indians on the warpath.

Armed vigilante groups formed after the Saturday night riot and patrolled the entire area where the Indians live. Twelve of the armed men in three cars questioned and threatened three United Press reporters and a radio network reporter, then shot up the newsmen's car as they left the scene.

Robeson County Sheriff Malcolm McLeod said he will seek an indictment against the Rev. James Cole, who fled with his followers in the face of a burst of Indian gunfire that stopped the rally cold.

President to Make Fighting Speech at Chicago Rally Tonight

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—President Eisenhower was reported ready to make a "fighting speech" tonight telling Republicans they will have to hustle this year if they hope to achieve their program and win back Congress in November.

He was expected to slap hard at political opponents who picture the nation in dire peril from Russian advances because of the Republican administration's policies.

The President, accompanied by Mrs. Eisenhower, was scheduled to leave by plane for Chicago where he will keynote the GOP's kickoff of its 1958 campaign to recapture Congress from the Democrats and prepare for the 1960 presidential election.

Win 4-H Awards

A young man who had no trouble seeing the forest for the trees is Max Allison, 18, of Coles county.

Max was named 1957 winner of the state 4-H Forestry award and received a handsome pen and pencil set from American Forest Products Industries.

For his tireless efforts in completing 4-H Forestry units and reforestation, Max won many county, district and state awards. He first planted 500 red pine of which 80% survived. Later he planted 2,500 more pines of different varieties.

Max also worked on 12 other programs setting up over 100 exhibits. He has been chosen state outstanding 4-H Club member and honor member.

More than a good crop was in store for Lloyd Hanna, Jr., 18, of Montgomery county who is state winner in the 4-H Field Crops program. He was awarded an all-expense trip to the recent 4-H Club Congress in Chicago by Arcadian Products Dept. of Allied Chemical & Dye Corp.

With seven solid years of 4-H behind him, Lloyd is justly proud of his handsome trophy collection. He reports a net profit of some $6,000.

In the past four years, Lloyd raised a total of 232 acres of corn, wheat, milo, maize and oats. He has piled up seven county, state and regional grand championships and has been a consistent winner in judging and showmanship.

A junior leader since 1956, Lloyd continues his 4-H activities while attending the University of Illinois.

These 4-H award programs are conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service.

Bull Dogs Smell Victory, Lose at Herrin 57-56

Lose in Last Minute After Big Lead Falls

Locals Play Without Biggest Man, Injured Ronnie Maynard

The Harrisburg Bull Dogs, playing without their "big man," injured Ronnie Maynard, came within an eyelash of upsetting mighty Herrin in a South Seven basketball game at Herrin Saturday night.

But instead of winning, victory was grasped away from the locals in the closing minute and the Tigers had another win by a 57-56 count.

Harrisburg led the entire game except once when the count was tied at 20-20, until Ron Ward, a substitute, entered the battle and made the winning basket with 58 seconds left. The local lead was as high as 13 points in the second period and eight points with three and a half minutes to go in the final frame.

Although the loss was another heartbreaker for Coach John Dotson and his boys, a couple of items of consolation can be derived from the contest.

Should Have Confidence
First, the Bull Dogs should know without a doubt that they can rub shoulders with the best teams in the state without having to be humbled into submission. They should gain in confidence by the way they've played against such teams as West Frankfort, Mount Vernon and Herrin, which are among the top teams in Illinois.

Secondly, Coach Dotson now has another man upon whom he can depend in Bill Yates, the six-foot senior who played the entire game at center because Ron Maynard, stalwart rebounder and scorer, was out with a broken finger suffered Friday night in beating Marion. Yates, who has seen very little action this year, guarded 6-5 Gene Turni of Herrin and held him to six points. The local speedster also did some excellent rebounding, timing his jumps under the boards very well.

It is not known just how much action the hefty Maynard will miss with his broken finger.

Run Up 19-14 Lead
The Bull Dogs, hitting seven out of 11 field goal attempts to six out of 16 for Herrin, ran up a 19-14 lead the first frame. They outscored Herrin 18 to 12 the second period by connecting with five out of ten while Herrin was hitting six out of 15, and the score at intermission time was 37-28. During the first half Harrisburg shot .571, Herrin .387.

With Ray Hassett, who is developing into a top driver and floor leader, and sophomore John Stone making all of Harrisburg's 10 points, Herrin cut down the margin the third period as the Tigers hit for six out of 17 for 13 tallies.

The score was 47-39 as the last period began and Harrisburg still had an eight point lead at 54-46 with only three and a half minutes left in the game. Then Box made a field goal and free throw and Willie Williams a basket and the lead was cut to 54-51 with two minutes and 15 seconds remaining.

Miss On Shots
However, Hassett made two free shots at that point to make the count 56-51. Harrisburg slowed up its game from there on but a couple of shots were taken which missed, and Herrin took the ball down for buckets.

Then with 58 seconds to go Herrin took the lead at 57-56 when Ward uncorked one from about 15 feet out and Harrisburg, in going down with plenty of time to score, had a bad pass go out-of-bounds and Herrin had the ball. Herrin stalled out the last 42 seconds and the ball game was over.

For the contest, Harrisburg shot around .435, Herrin around .400. Harrisburg was unusually good at the foul line, connecting with 18 out of 22.

In the preliminary game the Bull Pups were drubbed, 82 to 51.

This week-end the Bull Dogs join Carrier Mills, Eldorado and Galatia in the annual Saline county tournament in Davenport gym.

Hawks Get Walt Davis from Philly For Draft Choice

ST. LOUIS AP—The St. Louis Hawks Sunday announced they gave up rights to Dave Plunkett, their No. 1 draft choice two years ago, to the Philadelphia Warriors.

The Hawks in return got Walter Davis, who won the Olympic high jumping title at Helsinki in 1952 with a world's record of 6-feet, 11½-inches.

Davis, who played college basketball at Texas A&M, joined Philadelphia in 1953 and played with the Warriors' NBA championship team in the 1955-56 season. He will join the Hawks' squad by Tuesday.

The Hawks, by giving up the rights to Plunkett, also gave up a future draft choice and allowed the Warriors to negotiate for him.

Western Illinois President Resigns In Athlete Quiz

NORMAL, Ill. AP—The resignation of Western Illinois University President Frank A. Beu, charged with questionable policies in getting and keeping school athletes, today climaxed a two-month dispute within the university.

Beu had been president of the school for 16 years.

Beu submitted his resignation Sunday after an eight-hour meeting of the Teacher's College Board on the campus of Illinois State Normal University here. During the closed meeting, Lowell B. Fisher, Urbana, president of North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, disclosed charges made by Western faculty members against Beu during the past two months.

However, the nature of the charges was not made public by Fisher or the board.

Beu asked last November that the NCACSS investigate Western's administration following charges by Lloyd Herberner, McDonough county probation officer. Herberner, during prosecution of burglary charges against WIU students, said that the university did not maintain sufficient supervision of athletes on campus and did not screen them prior to registration.

Carter Again Wins Bowling Title

MINNEAPOLIS AP—Don Carter of St. Louis is undisputed king of bowling today, but he reigns with a new queen.

Merle Matthews, a 42-year-old secretary from Long Beach, Calif. is the queen. She defeated six-time champion Marion Ladewig, Grand Rapids, Mich., Sunday night to win the women's division title in the national all-star match game tourney.

Carter, 32, the nerveless kegler from St. Louis, won an unprecedented fourth all-star title.

Boston, St. Louis Hold Leads in Pro Basketball Races

By United Press
It was Boston and St. Louis "by plenty" in their respective divisions today as National Basketball Assn. teams took a breather for the annual "all-star break."

The Celtics maintained their 6½ game lead in the Eastern Division by defeating the Philadelphia Warriors, 114-113, Sunday, while the Hawks increased their Western Division lead to eight games with a 108-90 victory over Cincinnati.

Tuesday night, the all-star game between the East and West is scheduled at St. Louis.

Minneapolis battled back from a half-time deficit to beat Detroit, 118-111, and Syracuse downed the New York Knicks, 112-108.

XXXV
As I jumped for him, crouching low, I thought again that I had nothing to lose. I only knew that I wasn't going to stand still and let him do it. I heard his startled yelp, and the gun blast above me, and felt a hot pain somewhere between my left ear and shoulder. But I crashed into his legs, tried to drag him down, my right hand clawing for his gun arm. He kicked clear, and I felt the jarring jolt of his foot on my jaw. I rolled over on my back, saw the swirling blue sky and the tree branches. Then I tried to push myself up, wondering what had happened to Howell. I saw him then, standing above me, pointing the gun at my right eye and squinting carefully down the barrel, showing his teeth in a kind of fixed rodent grin. He was taking no chances this time. I stared into the muzzle and thought of all my sins.

I was still on my knees reaching for him, when I heard the roar of the gun. I squeezed my eyes shut involuntarily, knowing that he couldn't miss, and wondering with an odd detachment where the bullet had hit me. But I felt no second pain, no impact. I felt nothing but black despair, and I guess it was pure survival instinct that made me scramble backward and grope in the weeds for my gun. Miraculously, I had it in my hand, felt the lovely, heavy coolness of it. I was on my knees in the weeds. The sun was hot on my head and I blinked in the sun as I peered upward, looking for Howell, the gun held ahead of me in a trembling hand. But I didn't see Howell, and I worried me.

And then I saw him, lying on his back in the weeds to my right. His knees were bent upward and he was holding both hands against his chest. Blood was seeping from between his fingers. As I watched, he coughed up at the hot blue sky, a thick strangled sound, and the blood ran from his open convulsed mouth and dripped over his chin.

Hugo Howell's eyes stared upward, bulging with an expression of wild horror and maybe a frenzied disbelief. His stomach jerked and he coughed again. I rose unsteadily and stumbled to him, thinking vaguely that I would lift him, so that he could expel the strangling blood. But when I knelt beside him and had gotten an arm beneath his shoulders and was lifting him up, his body strained rigidly and then went limp, very completely limp. His legs moved languidly and he seemed to settle cozily into the weeds. Then his jaw sagged and his eyes stared unblinkingly up into the morning sun.

I've seen death come many times, but it was the first time a man had died in my arms, a man who had been about to kill me. Slowly and gently I removed my arm from beneath Hugo Howell's shoulders and lowered him to the weeds.

Behind me a voice said, "Are you all right, Bennett?"

I swung around and stared dumbly. A man was standing in the underbrush a little distance away, a tall thin man in a dark suit. I narrowed my eyes and slowly he came into focus. "Hello, Chief."

He moved toward me. There was a gun in his right hand, a big blue revolver. His lean face was a dirty gray color and I hoped that I would never see eyes as cold as his. Bleak was the word. Cold and bleak.

"You're hurt, Bennett," Campbell said sharply.

"Yeah, I guess so." I gestured toward the still form of Hugo Howell. "He's dead, Chief."

He nodded, his lips tight. "I'm sorry. I had to shoot fast."

"Thanks," I said. "Thanks, Chief." It seemed that the ground was moving beneath my feet and that the sunlight was dying.

I felt him grasp my arm. "We've got to get you to a doctor."

"No hurry," I said lightly. "I'm still alive." It was a wonderful, dizzy feeling. "I'm just fine."

A plump gray-haired female in white was leaning over me. "Would we like some supper?" she asked brightly. A fountain pen and a fever thermometer were clipped in a pocket of her uniform.

"Sure," I said.

I thanked her and asked her to bring me up to date. She did. Chief of Police Campbell had brought me to the hospital around 11 o'clock. I'd been unconscious from shock and loss of blood. Somewhere during the trip to town the chief had stopped, removed his shirt and wadded it over my wound in an attempt to stop the flow of blood.

"And a good thing he did," the nurse said, "because the bullet hit a vein, one of the veins off the jugular, a branch. Chief Campbell saved your life. We took you right into emergency and Dr. Mowry tied off the vein under local anesthesia. Then he gave you a sedative and you've been sleeping ever since."

"I see," I said. The area above my left collar bone felt stiff and sore, and I lifted a hand to feel the bandage there.

"I'm Mrs. Correll, Mr. Bennett."

LITTLE LIZ

The surest way for a man to keep a secret from his wife is not to do it in the first place.

The whole town is buzzing about what happened." Her eyes were bright and inquisitive. "When you feel better, would you tell me about how you caught that murderer?" "He caught me," I muttered. "I want to see Chief Campbell."

"He's right outside waiting for you to wake up. Dr. Mowry said you could have visitors. Shall I tell Chief Campbell to come in?" "By all means," I said grimly. "Now."
